

Abstract of Disclosure

Systems and methodologies for fabrication of a memory cell or array are disclosed. The memory cell employs a functional zone with passive and active layers. Such passive and active layers facilitate electron migration, and allow a plurality of states for the memory cell. A memory device formed in accordance with the disclosed methodology can include a top-electrode formed over the functional layer, which in turn over lays a lower conductive layer.